Dear Wayne,

We are writing to thank the Palmerston Regional Business Association for your donation to the National Australia Banks Ovarian Cancer Research Foundation.

Ovarian cancer is a disease which currently claims the life of one Australian woman ever 10 hours - but unlike breast or cervical cancer, there is no early detection test. By the time most women are diagnosed with ovarian cancer, chances are it will be at an advanced stage. The reality is, more women proportionally will die from ovarian cancer than breast cancer and only about 20 per cent of women diagnosed with advanced ovarian cancer will survive for more than five years

Since 2001, National Australia Bank has been working with the Ovarian Cancer Research Foundation (OCRF) to find an early detection for ovarian cancer.

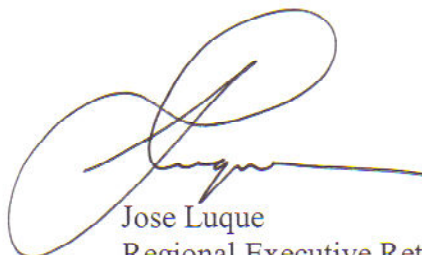

As the Foundation Sponsor of OCRF, NAB is committed to raising vital funds and community awareness of Ovarian Cancer through our branches and local communities. The funds we've raised in the past five years have already provided for critical equipment and are now supporting world-leading research into Ovarian Cancer

Your support will help OCRF to find an early detection test and we thank you on behalf of all Australian Women.

Regards
